Million Dollar Quartet is inspired by the actual impromptu recording session that took place on December 4th, 1956 at Sun Records' studio in Memphis Tennessee. Carl Perkins was in the studio that day to work with Sun Records founder Sam Phillips. Jerry Lee Lewis was a new and upcoming singer and piano player who Phillips had brought into the session. Over the course of Perkins' and Lewis' time in the studio, both Elvis Presley and Johnny Cash coincidentally stopped by and an unbelievable jam session began. The Sun Records engineer at the time recognized what a unique opportunity this was, and he began to record the session. When a local reporter wrote about the session he said "this quartet could sell a million" and the Million Dollar Quartet was born.

Million Dollar Quartet is about the true "power of us". This once-in-a-lifetime tale of four music legends coming together in that recording studio in Memphis is a great example to all of us of the energy and force of what can happen when artists come together. We have seen that throughout this season at Theatre Calgary. From taking our Shakespeare by the Bow out on the go last summer, to our first show on the mainstage in October with Boom YZ, to celebrating the holidays with A Christmas Carol, followed by sharing laughs and tears with Steel Magnolias, and finally now, sharing in this landmark musical event with Million Dollar Quartet, we have felt the power and love of having everyone back in the theatre from our artists, our staff, our crew and especially our audience. And what better way to end our season than with a show about four of the greatest musical storytellers of all time. We have no doubt you will enjoy the contagious spirit and award-winning music of this iconic moment in history.

We look forward to welcoming you back to the theatre in September when the first show of our 2022-2023 season opens. On behalf of everyone at Theatre Calgary, we thank you for continuing to share in the power of us.

recently saw a YouTube clip of the late, great Peter Allen singing his song (that he co-wrote with Carole Bayer Sager) “Everything Old is New Again.”

*And don't throw the past away
You might need it some other rainy day
Dreams can come true again
When everything old is new again*

Vinyl - LPs, records - have made a huge comeback in the last decade. According to the Recording Industry Association of America, vinyl record sales hit a thirty-year high in 2021 – from 21.5 million units in 2020 to 41.7 million last year. The digital format of a CD (and music streaming) is the dominant way most people listen to music. From a purely technical perspective, CD audio is considered “superior” to vinyl. However, audiophiles argue that owning a high-quality record player is no longer a thing of the past, but the way to properly hear music in the most unadulterated way – the analog way. Purists claim something is lost when sound is converted into digital data. A digital format (CD), to some, has a “colder” sound, and some listeners feel that vinyl introduces a more “warmer.” (Personally, I would agree!)

Many young people are discovering, in the attics of their parents (or grandparents), boxes of used records filled with such vinyl treasures as Elvis Presley, The Beatles, Tony Bennett, The Who and more. As I am a record collector, I have spent a few hours at Recordland (on 9th Avenue SE) and Turn It Up! Records & Hi-Fi (on 16th Ave NW). Finding some buried treasure makes the two-hour excavation that more rewarding. With technology exploding daily, and new iPhones being sold every other month, I find myself enjoying the ritual of listening to a vinyl – selecting the record, pulling it out of the sleeve, running a cleaning brush over the record, placing it on the turntable, lifted the needle in place, and being taken in by the story of the complete “Side A” (and then “Side B”).

It is estimated that the combined record sales (worldwide) of Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash, Jerry Lee Lewis and Carl Perkins is over two billion records. So, the next time you come across a box of records in your parents’ attic or garage, rummage through these “relics” and I bet you will discover a record of one of the artists featured in Million Dollar Quartet; and, if you’re lucky, you will find a 7” vinyl of Coldplay’s “Champion of the World” which recently sold on eBay for over $18K!

DIRECTOR'S NOTES

When I was asked to direct Million Dollar Quartet, I wasn't sure it was a perfect fit. I knew these gentlemen's music and a little of their histories but once I read the script, I fell in love with these boys. I became fascinated by the origins and evolution of Rock n' Roll, and each gentleman's connection to the music.

Each grew up dirt poor in the US Deep South, living among poor Black populations, hearing Gospel and Blues music all around them, which they would then sing and play around their homes. They all shared a religious connection which promised them a better life in the hereafter, better than the abject poverty they grew up in. It's that spiritual connection of those poor Black and white Southerners that inspired Carl, Jerry Lee, Johnny and Elvis to lift their souls in song.

Gospel/Blues became Jump Blues (Boogie) which, in turn, became R and B. And it was the eventual combining of Black R and B with these white Southern boys' own roots in country music that would become classic ROCK N' ROLL. Two worlds combining to create something new; something that would give every generation of teenager - of every colour - a music genre that would signal teenage rebellion from their parents' generation for the rest of time.

As a Black director, I was deeply moved that these white boys from the south were so spiritually inspired as young people by the Black music they grew up hearing. Carl Perkins, Jerry Lee Lewis, Johnny Cash and Elvis Presley would not have become who they became without the groundbreaking talents of a Sister Rosetta Tharpe, a Howlin' Wolf, a Chuck Berry, a Jackie Wilson, a Ruth Brown, a Little Richard, etc.

We are delighted to share this musical marriage with you tonight. This production is a celebration of Rock n' Roll and the Black music and musicians whose shoulders it stands upon - the Black writers and singers who were not given the same accolades but whose DNA is all over this revolutionary music.

Rock n' Roll is here to stay!

THE AL OSTEN AND BUDDY VICTOR LEGACY FUND: Investing in an Artistic Future

Al Osten

Buddy Victor

Buddy Victor and Al Osten are synonymous with community. Over the years, Buddy and Al have made significant contributions, both as partners and individuals. They've enriched the lives of Albertans and Canadians through health, recreation, social services and arts initiatives. They also endowed the Al Osten and Buddy Victor Alberta Tennis Centre, a 13-court, 71,000-square-foot facility that is the first centre of its kind in Calgary. And according to Tennis Canada, it's the best centre of this kind in North America.

Their endeavors in the arts have included support of the Art the Art Gallery of Alberta and investing in many successful Broadway shows, in an effort to share their love of music and live performance art with generations to come.

It is a true honour for Theatre Calgary to count Al Osten and Buddy Victor among our dearest friends and most passionate supporters. Theatre Calgary is tremendously thankful for their years of dedicated support and championing the arts in our community. We treasure our relationship with Al and Buddy, and celebrate the enormous impact they have had on Theatre Calgary and the greater artistic community, now and into the future. Their tremendous gift will help us further our commitment to invest in the future of live theatre, bringing new works and musicals to the stage, and continuing to bring the joy of live theatre to more Calgarians and visitors.

“My family was poor, but we always had a pishke [charity box]. We didn't have much, but now I do. I want to share it... to leave a legacy.”

- AL OSTEN

Buddy Victor and Al Osten are lifelong friends and business partners. They first met in 1956 when Buddy became the lead singer for The Rover Boys, a Toronto-based group, with Al Osten, Larry Amato and Doug Wells. Buddy and Al's relationship would grow from there, bonded by a shared passion for giving back to their community and an unwavering love for the arts.

The Rover Boys.

Buddy and Al both relocated to Edmonton in the 1960s, working together once again at a club called The Embers, with Buddy performing as a soloist. The duo began exploring business opportunities together when a new weight loss program, Weight Watchers, was garnering attention in New York piqued Buddy and Al's interest. Buddy's mother, Ann Freda, visited Weight Watcher's in New York and met with the legendary founder Jean Nidetch. Buddy and Al would take the visionary step of purchasing the Alberta and Saskatchewan Weight Watchers franchises.

Al Osten and Buddy Victor. Weight Watcher franchisees.

Million Dollar Quartet is made possible by the generous support of the Al Osten and Buddy Victor Legacy Fund. As longtime contributors to the arts, Al and Buddy's unwavering support to Theatre Calgary is integral to helping us raise the curtain.
