WELCOME TO THEATRE CALGARY

I've always believed that A Christmas Carol is one of the most powerful stories in existence. It has always profoundly moved me because its story is woven around a man who, until one very unusual Christmas Eve, has not truly noticed all the good and wonderful humanity that surrounds him. The message of the story rings even more true than in the past – to freely open your heart to others and be filled with gratitude for the people in our lives. In its simplicity, Dickens' story reminds us that we all have the potential to better ourselves, and thus make those around us better too.

Our filmed production of Carol features three extraordinary actors, and a team of world-class creative minds who came together, over three days in November 2020, to bring the magic of Carol to life. Over 20,000 people viewed this intimate production over the holidays from Calgary, to Hawaii to as far away as Tokyo!

This year, we are thrilled to present for your viewing pleasure, a newly edited "Director's Cut" of A Christmas Carol. There were a plethora of beautiful shots that ended up on the cutting room floor. I thought it would be fun to include some of those priceless moments in this special edition version.

On behalf of our Executive Director, Maya Choldin, and myself, we could not be prouder of the efforts of everyone at Theatre Calgary for making this filmed production possible and ensuring that an important piece of Calgary's holiday cultural fabric continues.

I wish you and your loved ones nothing but good health, and safety, over the holidays.

LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In the spirit of reconciliation, Theatre Calgary acknowledges that we live, work and create on the traditional territories of the Blackfoot Confederacy (Siksika, Kainai, Piikani), the Tsuut'ina, the Îyâxe Nakoda Nations, the Métis Nation (Region 3), and all people who make their homes in the Treaty 7 region of Southern Alberta. They were the original occupants of this land and continue to be here to this day. Theatre Calgary is grateful to have the opportunity to present in this territory.

PLAYWRIGHT'S NOTES

As I first adapted A Christmas Carol for Theatre Calgary back in 2019, I was constantly thinking about the relevancy in the messages Dickens was writing about almost 200 years ago: to pay attention to those around us; that we all belong to the same world. I thought a lot about how, in an increasingly individualized world, with technology driven isolation and polarized politics dividing friends and family, it feels so vital that we can come together around a story to remind us of our shared humanity.

Of course, over the past two years, those things have been put into hyperdrive. We have spent so much of this time separated from family, separated from friends, from community. I know so many people who have been left feeling scared, feeling angry, and those feelings can make it that much harder to feel connected to the larger world in which we live.

It feels strange and lonely to not be able to come together with my A Christmas Carol family: the full team of artists who brought this story to life on the Max Bell stage last year and for every year for longer than I have been alive. It was such a joy and an honour to be invited into that family, to get to create alongside such a large and inspiring band of Calgary artists. It was our hope to be able to share that production with our city again this year. But instead we are being asked to do what theatre artists have done for thousands of years: adapt.

I know that this play is a tradition for so many people and families in this city and beyond. I hope that this year's Carol can bring some normalcy to a very unfamiliar holiday season. And for those who are experiencing this play for the first time, I hope you can find comfort and reflection in this story about redemption, resiliency, and change.

As I tried to imagine how to adapt this play to film it was really important to me to lean into the theatricality of what we were doing. So we have stripped down the set to a handful of set pieces and pulled back the curtains to expose the full machinery of the theatre, with our three incredible actors transforming character to character right in front of you. My hope is that as much as you are transported back to London in 1843, you also feel transported to our theatre, sharing this space with all of us.

This year we have the great privilege to reach people beyond our city, beyond our country, and all of those who, for whatever reason, have never been able to join us in a physical theatre space. I'm so glad you are able to be here with us. Wherever you are watching from, I hope you feel a connection to everyone who has come together to watch this story and to all of us on the other side of the curtain.

From my home to yours, Merry Christmas and enjoy the show.

It has been a great privilege to be your Scrooge for these 27 years. And a great surprise. No actor expects to be playing the same role for so long. And so my thanks to all of you who, over many years, have made our Christmas Carol tradition a part of your family's annual celebration. And to those newcomers to our show...Welcome! If I have learned anything in playing this wonderful role it is simply this...we all make mistakes in life but we never lose the chance to be able to change and advance from darkness to light. Many of you have shared with me your own stories of being moved by Scrooge's journey. As an actor, to know that you may have touched someone and made an impact in their life is a humbling thing. And not something I take lightly. But that is why actors and audiences come together in a darkened room...to share, to laugh, to cry and to learn from each other. Thanks to all of you for allowing me to be a part of this remarkable journey.
